Six Die in Fayette County Airplane Crash

STIESKA GOP NOMINATION UPHELD

Private Ship Hits Hillside

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (UP) — Six persons, including a vice-president of Standard Oil of Ohio, were killed when their twin-engine private plane slammed into fog-shrouded Summit Mountain near here Sunday.

Bodies of the victims, all from Ohio, were found scattered outside the wreckage. The plane, a Lockheed Lodestar, skidded to a stop near the stainless steel Jumonville Cross, then burst into flames after cutting a swath through heavy woods.

The 65-foot-high cross, located on a knoll about eight miles east of here, is visible for miles. It serves as a marker for the Jumonville Methodist Training Center.

State Police identified the victims as Warren F. Noonan, Middletown, Ohio, the pilot; Theodore O. Krauss (5919 Verring Ave.), Cleveland, the co-pilot; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. McLaughlin (2584 Guilford Road), Cleveland Heights, and Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Stewart, Cleveland.

Stewart was a vice president of the Standard Oil Co. of Ohio, owner of the plane, and McLaughlin, a wealthy food broker.

The Stewarts and the McLaughlins, who were neighbors, were returning home from a vacation trip.

Way Off Course

The plane, capable of carrying 15 passengers, had left Cleveland earlier yesterday en route to White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. Company officials said it had arrived there safely and was apparently returning to Cleveland when it crashed into the mountain ridge.

Mrs. Walter Casteel, wife oft he caretaker of the Methodist Center, said "we heard the plane about 5:45 p.m. flying very low."

"But it was so foggy we couldn't tell how low it was," she said. "My husband and a neighbor, Francis Wilson, hurried out and found the burning wreckage. It was so hot they couldn't approach the scene. Wreckage was scattered all around the place where the plane had clipped the trees."

A CAB spokesman at the Greater Pittsburgh Airport said the plane did not check in at Pittsburgh. He said the craft "was way off its course if it was going straight to Cleveland."

Bodies of the victims were taken to the Haky funeral home in Uniontown.

Public Schools Back to Normal; Parochial Hit

Attendance at Monessen public schools was reported as back to normal today following the suspension of classes most of last week because of the "influenza-type" epidemic that hit the immediate district.

Such was not the case in local parochial schools and area public schools, however.

All classes were suspended for the day at Holy Name parochial school here while officials at St. Leonard's parochial school and Rostraver Twp. and Bellmarette reported a noted increase in absenteeism, particularly in the lower grades.

classes at Holy Name were suspended when more than one-third of the students were absent.

Dr. Joseph Pallone, superintendent of local schools who suspended classes last Tuesday for the remainder of the week, said today that "everything is in very good shape."

'Run Its Course'

He stated that only 138 students were absent from classes at the Junior-Senior High School this morning. He added the average for Monday absentees is 120.

When classes were suspended last week, a total of 712 students were absent from the higher grades.

"It appears as though the epidemic has run its course here," the superintendent remarked. "The rest did everyone a lot of good."

He added, however, that as a precautionary measure, gym and swimming classes and class assemblies will not be held this week.

"We'll wait until the end of this week before we reschedule these activities," Dr. Pallone said.

Officials at Bellmarette today said there was a marked increase in absenteeism this morning, mostly in the lower grades at North Belle Vernon, Belle Vernon, Marion and Fayette City.

The situation at Rostraver High and Junior High schools was reported as "a little better" today with only about 20 per cent absent. The percentage was much higher last week.

Trip to Moon Is Next Step

LONDON (UP)— Soviet scientists who perfected the first earth satellite are far along in studies of a space ship that can visit the moon and return, American scientists reported today in Barcelona, Spain.

Moscow newspapers hinted that some more startling development than the satellite was in the works and told readers to watch for "something special" on Nov. 7, 40th anniversary of the coup which put the Bolsheviks in power in 1917.

The American statements at the eighth International Astronautical Congress at Barcelona added to the controversy over whether success in launching the satellite meant the Soviet Union had leaped far ahead in perfecting an inter-continental ballistics missile —the ultimate weapon.

The Americans said the Soviets already were testing "space volunteers" from among their armed forces for possible flights into space and said the Russians' ability to launch the satellite "with no failures" meant flights to the moon could come in two years—or sooner.

Soviets At Work

In Moscow Geophysicist Yevgeni Fedorov, in charge of Russia's upper atmosphere research program, said the Soviets were working on the problem of the return of future satellites to earth with all their apparatus. Such a satellite might prove of immense military value.

The satellite already launched into outer space is called a "sputnik" by the Russians. Russian language experts in Moscow said "Sputnik" means satellite, although literally it may be translated as "life or fellow companion."

The satellite itself continued its unchecked orbit around the earth and was reported sighted in a number of places — Alaska, Australia, Estonia and Russia itself. Russia meanwhile appealed to radio hams throughout the world to help track the man-made moon. It has now travelled more than twice the distance from the earth to the moon.

In this connection Dr. John P. Hagen, chief of the U.S. satellite project "vanguard" said better tracking facilities in the United States might enable America to announce the exact course of the sphere before the Soviets.

However Moscow radio announced today the path of the satellite during today and tomorrow —Boston at 9:56 a.m. e.d.t., Tokyo

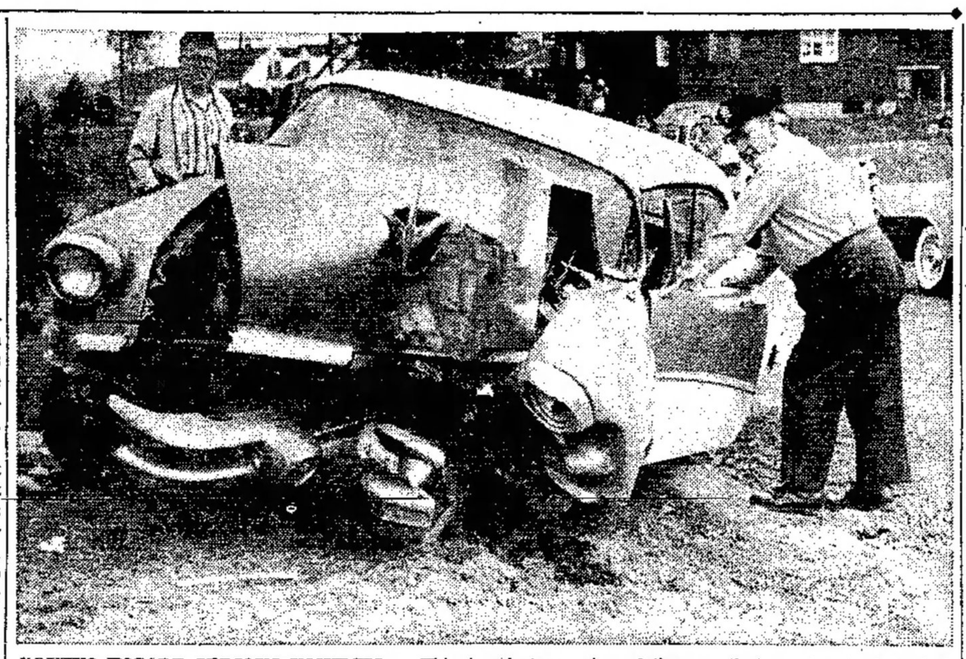
OPERATION MOONWATCH TRACKS SATELLITE—Maynard Boone peers through his telescope in San Francisco as more than 150 Operation Moonwatch stations in the world were activated to track the Russian earth satellite. The artifical moon is reportedly 22 inches in diameter and weighs 184 pounds. It circles the earth (diagram) every 95 minutes at an altitude of 558 miles. First station to report the satellite was Columbus, Ohio, where a powerful telescope has been set up for the international Geophysical Year.



YOUTHS ESCAPE SERIOUS INJURIES — This is what remains of the car that went out of control and crushed into a utility pole Saturday afternoon near Monongahela Country Club. The occupants, Andrew Kubin Jr., driver, 19, and Ray Gelsak, also 19, both of Charleroi, received multiple injuries and were taken to Charleroi-Monessen Hospital. They are reported in "good" condition. Monongahela Patrolman Art Skaine views the demolished machine.

Bentleyville Boy Is Killed in Accident

A 13-year-old Bentleyville boy, Frank Roman, was killed and 10 persons were injured in two separate motor accidents in the district yesterday, state police reported today.

The youth, a nephew of Mrs. John Pankovich, 640 Delaware Ave., Monessen, was riding with his father, John Roman, 46, when the accident happened on Route 19 about three miles south of Portersville, near Zelienople.

Police said the Roman car crossed the center line and collided with an auto driven by Walter D. Hudson, Parma, Ohio.

The elder Roman suffered a fractured jaw, lacerations and shock. He was reported in serious condition at Ellwood City Hospital.

Six are Injured

Hudson, 47, his wife, Mary, 46, and their son, James, 16, suffered lacerations, fractures and shock. The elder Hudsons were reported in serious condition, while James was listed as fair.

Six members of an R. D. 2 Blairsville family were injured, three severely, in a crash involving a tractor-trailer rig and two cars last night on Route 71 about three miles east of Belle Vernon, near Altier's service station.

State police said the tractor-trailer rig, operated by James J. Mazzaferro, 21, Youngwood skidded on the wet roadway and swung the trailer into the path of a car driven by Richard Erb, 35, Blairsville R.D. 2.

The rig then ran out of control, knocked down four guard fence posts, and struck another car operated by Michael G. Garry, Jr., 23, Pittsburgh.

Police said all of the injured were in the Erb car.

Admitted to the Charleroi-Monessen Hospital were Mrs. Eugenia Erb, 33, severe cuts and bruises; a daughter, Peggy Louise, 2½, cuts, contusions and a possible fractured skull; and a son, Charles, 6, possible fractured skull and bruises. All were listed in fair condition.

Treated were the driver, who suffered bruises and a possible fractured nose; and two other daughters, Donna Jean, 12, and Linda Lee, 8, who suffered cuts and abrasions.

Woman Slightly Hurt in One of Three Accidents

Monessen police today reported three motor accidents occurred in the city over the week end, one of them resulting in a woman being slightly injured.

A car occupied by Charles Byrd, of 105 S. McKean Ave., and Carrie Callaham of 1430 Schoonmaker Ave., was struck while parked near 14th St. early yesterday morning by a car operated by Charles J. Beazell, of 35 Main St., Belle Vernon.

Beazell told police that an oncoming car forced him into the parked machine.

Miss Callaham complained of neck and back injuries and said she would go to a physician's office for examination.

Two cars were involved in an accident on Grand Blvd. Saturday night about 8 o'clock. Drivers involved were Alice Pollack, of 305 Robinson St., and William DiFlorio, of 1936 Grand Blvd., both of Monessen. Damage was slight, it was said.

A woman identified as S. Rosetti, of 104 Knox Ave., told police that her car was parked in front of her home when it was struck by a hit-run driver Saturday afternoon. No major damage resulted, reports stated.

James Hamer Is Hurt in Accident At Water Plant

James Hamer, of Fayette City, superintendent of Washington Twp. Water Authority and Valley sports official, underwent an emergency operation at Presbyterian Hospital yesterday afternoon following an accident at the water plant yesterday morning at 10:30.

Hamer was using a power saw when the blade cut through three fingers on his right hand. A physician said he believes the operation may save the fingers from being amputated.

The night before the accident Hamer officiated at the Pittsburgh Steeler-Cleveland Brown football game at Forbes Field.

It was learned that his wife entered the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Hospital in Pittsburgh yesterday for an eye operation.

Two Charleroi Youths Lucky in Auto Accident

Two Charleroi youths were lucky to escape with their lives as their car smashed into a utility pole on Route 88 adjacent to the Monongahela Valley Country Club's golf course Saturday afternoon.

The driver, Andrew Kubin Jr., 19, 101 Prospect Ave., and Ray Gelsak, also 19, of 104 Meadow Ave., both of Charleroi, are patients today in the Monongahela Memorial Hospital.

Both youths have severe cuts and bruises of the face and body but hospital reports described their conditions as "good".

Monongahela city police said Kubin lost control of the late model sedan as it hit a curve opposite the No. 1 green of the golf course.

The car left the road and smashed head-on into a utility pole, splitting it up the middle. The vehicle continued spinning but did not overturn and finally stopped dangerously close to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin T. Hirz.

Police said Kubin and Gelsak were thrown from the car before it came to a stop. The car is a total wreck.

The golf course was crowded with Saturday afternoon players when the crash occurred. Many dropped their clubs, rushed to the scene and aided the injured youths until an ambulance arrived. Witnesses said the car was traveling at very high speed.

Rostraver Meeting

The Rostraver Twp. School Board will meet this evening at 8 p. m. in the superintendent's office at the Junior High School.

Supreme Court Rules Write-in Votes Are Good

PITTSBURGH (UP) — The state Supreme Court today affirmed a lower court order directing that John R. Stieska be certified as the Republican nominee for mayor of Monessen.

Incumbent Mayor Hugo Parente had appealed a Westmoreland County Court order upholding Stieska's victory in the May 21 primary. Cumulation of write-in votes by the county elections board gave Stieska a 170-149 victory. If the votes had not been cumulated by the board, Parente would have won, 70-58.

Chief Justice Charles Alvin Jones, in writing the opinion pointed out that Section 1405 of the state election code "has exclusive reference to irregular ballots on voting machines."

"This court has held that under Section 302 of the election code which prescribes the power and duty of a county election board., a county board has the power to determine the intention of the voter and accumulate ballot write-ins for any candidate ascertained by the board after appropriate proceedings to be entitled by them," the opinion read.

Power of Board

Jones said since the board did not attempt to cumulate write-in votes "consequently the question of the board's power is not before us. The board has the power to determine the intention of the voter and cumulate the ballots."

The dispute arose when the county elections board declared Parente the successful Democratic nominee by a 70-58 count. The names of the candidates on the Republican write-in ballot varied in spelling.

The board awarded the vote to Parente on basis of correct spellings.

However, Stieska appealed the board's decision to the common pleas court. The court sustained Stieska's appeal and ordered the votes accumulated, thus giving him a victory of 170 to 149 votes.

Parente, the incumbent mayor won the Democratic nomination handily.

Jones said his opinion in the Stieska case also applied to a similar dispute in Arnold where the issue concerned candidates for city council nomination on the Republican write-in ballots.

Stolen Car Is Recovered Here

A car stolen Saturday night on Seventh St., Monessen, was recovered this morning parked on Morgan Alley, police reported.

The car, belonging to June Farmer, of New Eagle, was out of gas when found.

Lt. Algie Link found the car on a routine check about 8 o'clock.

The vehicle had no apparent damages.

Firemen Plan Drill Tomorrow At C-M Hospital

More than half-million dollars in fire equipment will be summoned tomorrow evening when district fire departments stage a simulated evacuation drill at Charleroi-Monessen Hospital.

The drill, which is scheduled for about 6:30 p.m., is being held in conjunction with National Fire Prevention Week, today through Saturday.

Fire-fighters participating will be from Monessen, Charleroi, Lock Four, Donora, North Belle Vernon, Belle Vernon, Monongahela, Carroll Twp., Fairhope and Webster.

While the other companies will be active at the hospital, Fairhope will "cover" the Belle Vernon district and Rostraver will move in to "protect" Monessen.

Funeral directors with ambulances will also participate.

Monessen will display its vast collection of first aid and rescue equipment and will also simulate a man jumping from the roof by tossing a "dummy" into a life net.

Monessen, along with Charleroi, will also display giant aerial trucks and will shoot up ladders at various parts of the institution. North Belle Vernon's powerful high pressure fog truck will be in action during the drill.

There will be no actual evacuation of patients.

Chief W. Roy McShaffrey will lead the local firemen.

Hoffa to Take Over Teamsters Union at Once

MIAMI BEACH, (UP)—Teamsters union president-elect James R. Hoffa had the go-ahead from Dave Beck today to take over officially the huge truckers union right away.

Beck, the outgoing chief, will go on leave of absence Oct. 15, six weeks ahead of the date he will retire on a $50,000 a year pension.

He told newsmen Sunday night he is "terribly anxious to get away." He said he expected Hoffa to take charge of the 1,400,000-member Teamsters Oct. 16 or 17.

Actually Hoffa appeared to be in command even before a tumultuous convention got underway a week ago. The convention swept the pint-sized Detroiter into the presidency in defiance of the AFL-CIO, elected the 13 vice presidents he handpicked and adopted every one of Hoffa's suggestions.

Beck denied he was leaving under pressure from Hoffa. He said he did not want to make policy decisions that Hoffa might not agree with when he took office.

Campaign Briefs—

Opponents Are Dodging Issues, Pershing Says

Attorney Avra N. Pershing Jr., one of the three Republican candidates for common pleas judge in Westmoreland County, is trying to get his Democratic opponents to take a position on political activity by judges.

In a letter addressed to Judges Edward G. Bauer, David H. Weiss and District Attorney Alex Sculco, who are the Democratic nominees, Pershing said;

"The direct issues of the present judicial campaign are being artfully dodged by the Democratic candidates as evidenced by the publicized accounts of their speeches. I take this means of bringing to your attention, as well as to the voting public, the real issues of this campaign."

Pershing said there are two issues:

1. "Control of law enforcement in Westmoreland County" by Chief Detective Arthur (Buddy) Turner and Turner's power to designate candidates for judge.

2. "Fair and impartial administration of justice" by judges who do not participate actively in partisan politics.

The GOP candidate pointed out that three other Democratic judges, who are not candidates in the current election, violated judicial ethics by endorsing the Democratic ticket.

"If elected," Pershing asked his opponents, "do you propose to refrain from active participation in partisan politics?

"What position do you take as to Buddy Turner and his political influence?

"Your direct answer to these questions is asked."

Pershing said he and his running mates, Robert H. Rial and

Atlantic Coast Is Buffeted

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — A typical northeaster storm with heavy rain and winds up to 60 miles per hour in gusts buffeted New Jersey, Delaware and Virginia coastal areas Sunday causing wind and water damage in its wake.

The storm moved inland from the Atlantic in a wide path and caused thousands of dollars of damage in the Delaware Valley area. The storm was expected to continue on to the Great Lakes region where it will "blow itself out."

In West Wildwood, N.J., water backed up in the inland waterways and flooded a 10-block area forcing residents to wade barefoot to and from their homes.

Rains whipped along by gusty winds lashed the Atlantic City area and some householders reported flooding. Boardwalk shopkeepers boarded up their storefronts to prevent glass breakage. Seas were expected to run about four feet above normal today.

Walk Goes On

The storm failed to cancel a scheduled national A.A.U. senior 15-kilometer walk, however. Twenty six competitors made the jaunt of 9 3-8 miles on the boardwalk despite gale force winds.

In Rehoboth Beach, Del., a 62-foot ketch ran aground at the Indian River Inlet. Six men aboard the $40-thousand craft, including two injured, were rescued by the Coast Guard. The injured were J. D. Stock, of 2166 33rd St., Astoria, N. Y., and Dr. William Eisenbrandt, of 217 E. 17th St., New York City. The boat, owned by Ives' Warfarers Charters, Inc., was being taken from New York to Florida.

Also in Rehoboth, winds ripped a dredge from its moorings in the Rehoboth Canal and tossed it ashore.

In the Delaware Valley area many trees were uprooted and windows smashed by the gusty winds. The Delaware had tides more than three feet above normal and the weather bureau here reported nearly an inch of rain fell.

Along the upper Delaware River in Bucks County, numerous small craft were ripped loose and others were damaged by severe pounding along piers and jetty.

A CHEER AT INTEGRATION SCENE—Actress Julie Adams (right) joins the students of Little Rock Central High School in a familiar cheer as she visits her former alma mater. Now a Hollywood star, Miss Adams returned for lunch in the school cafeteria, thus shifting the spotlight from the bitter integration crisis that has been the chief topic of conversation.

Racial Tensions Are Easing at Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP)—Inside the building, 30 more outside at entrances.

Negro leader said today racial tensions seem to be easing in Little Rock and the atmosphere at integrated Central High School is "getting back to normal pretty fast."

Mrs. Lucius C. Bates, Arkansas leader of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, said the nine Negro students attending Central High under the protection of federal troops are beginning to look forward "hopefully" to the day when "they can walk to school like everyone else, without armed guards."

The Army escorted the Negro boys and girls to school as usual this morning. For the first time there was no crowd of white students on the steps to watch their arrival. Six National Guardsmen walked with the Negroes from an Army station wagon to the steps where three paratroopers took over. No one hooted, jeered or yelled, and there were no incidents of any kind.

Two-man patrols of National Guardsmen still walked the sidewalks adjacent to the school. Thirty paratroopers with billy clubs and sidearms were stationed

Mrs. Bates told a reporter she would not risk a prediction as to "exactly how long" troops will be needed at the high school to insure the safety of the Negro children. But she said Negroes are encouraged by the progress that has been made in the past week toward restoring "law and order" in the community.

First Sighting

The first confirmed sighting came from Alaska where Dr. Gordon Little reported he watched the "surprisingly bright" satellite at dawn Sunday. Moscow radio announced a sighting at Tallinn, Estonia, and other sightings in Russia.

Two amateur astronomers in Hobart, Tasmania, reported seeing the satellite at twilight. William Watson, a communications officer, described it as a "spark of warm orange" and said "I had a feeling of overpowering awe as we watched that thing." He said it was visible for 15 to 20 seconds.

Two women reported seeing it this morning.

Military potentialities of the satellite and future space projectiles caused grave concern in some western military circles. Most military observers were convinced the satellite could not have been launched without a rocket powerful enough for an intercontinental ballistics missile.

It was generally agreed the satellite itself was of no military use but that studies of its action was of immeasurable value in studying rocket warfare.

Says U. S. Has Rocket Ready To Shoot Now

WASHINGTON (UP)—A U.S. rocket designed to plunge further into space than the Soviet satellite "could go at any minute," an Air Force spokesman said today.

He said the four-stage rocket, expected to climb 1,000 to 4,000 miles to the highest point ever reached by a man-made object, has been ready for firing since Sept. 30. The only thing delaying it is the weather, he said.

The launching, known as "Project Far Side," will take place at Eniwetok Atoll in the Pacific. The rocket will be carried to 100,000 feet by a balloon-supported platform before being fired into outer space.

The Air Force had planned to fire it in late September but was delayed by weather and other factors. Sources here said it could be set off at any time.

These sources said the rocket is too small to boost an earth satellite into space but is considered important as a research instrument.

Mon City Taxi Asks Fare Rise

HARRISBURG (UP)—City Taxi of Monongahela has asked Public Utility Commission authority to raise its base mileage rate from 10-cents per quarter mile to 25 cents per half mile for service in sections of Washington and Allegheny counties.

In a proposed fare schedule submitted to the PUC today, the firm seeks also to raise its fare for rides for any point-to-point trip over two miles from 50 to 65 cents.

The firm said the changes would yield approximately $1,400 additional revenue annually which it said is needed to meet higher operating costs.

The firm furnishes service in the Monongahela and New Eagle areas of Washington County, and in Forward Twp., Allegheny County.

Four Persons Hurt in Crash Near Greensburg

GREENSBURG (UP) — Four persons were injured Sunday, two seriously, when their automobile careened off a road near the Everglades Dam west of here, struck an iron post, two concrete abutments, a guard rail and a bulletin board.

State police said they have not been able to determine who was operating the high-priced, late model car but believe the driver lost control while traveling at high speed. They said the car was demolished.

The injured, all taken to Westmoreland Hospital, were identified as:

Marion Spiers, 22, McKeesport, head and chest injuries, condition serious.

Tillman Rucker, 26, White Oak, fractured wrist and possible fracture of facial bones, condition satisfactory.

Pleven to Make French Attempt

PARIS (UP)—Former Premier Rene Pleven agreed today to make an attempt to form a government and end France's deepening political crisis.

Pleven, 56, who has served as a premier twice before, told President Rene Coty he would try to form a middle of the road government. He is head of the radical party (USDR.)

French newspapers were not very optimistic about Pleven's chances although he is known as a conciliator.

Coty chose Pleven after another former premier, Socialist Guy Mollet, told the President Sunday he could not marshal enough support from parliament to become premier. Mollet said there was too much conservative (independent party) opposition to his economic program.

Ex-GOP Top Official Will Support Lawrence

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Artema C. Leslie, former state insurance commissioner and controversial figure in Republican circles, has announced his support of Mayor David L. Lawrence for a fourth term.

Leslie, insurance commissioner under former Gov. John S. Fine, was one of several Republicans indicted for alleged payroll padding involving about $400,000 in 1954. The charges against Leslie and the others were thrown out of court last May.

A former Allegheny County district attorney, Leslie termed Lawrence a symbol of "civic progress all over the country" in announcing his support. Lawrence heads the Democratic ticket in the November elections.

The mayor's office announced Leslie's support Sunday. However the announcement said the support actually came in a letter to the mayor on Sept. 27. The letter said in part:

"... There are times when the best interests of the community call for a putting aside of party politics. I think today is such a time in Pittsburgh. Your leadership has made the name 'Pittsburgh' synonymous with civic progress all over the country."

John Drew, the Republican mayoralty candidate, and Edward L. Flaherty, GOP county chairman, declined comment on Leslie's action.

Dinner Postponed

Westmoreland County Republicans have postponed their $10-a-plate dinner, originally set for Oct. 10 on account of the influenza epidemic, it was announced today by Daniel J. Snyder Jr., dinner chairman.

The new date is Saturday, Oct. 26. The affair will be held at the Mountain View Hotel near Greensburg.

"We have decided to postpone the dinner because of the number of influenza cases in the county," Snyder said. "We wish to give everybody a chance to attend and believe the health situation will be better in another two weeks when the weather will probably be cooler."

Principal speaker at the dinner will be state Sen. William Z. Scott of Lansford, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Reservations for the Oct. 26 date will continue to made through party headquarters, 111 N. Main St., Greensburg. Snyder said. Tickets bearing the Oct. 10 date will be honored on Oct. 26.

lower grades fell off this morning, it was reported.

Neither the township or Bellmarette has any plans at present for curtailing or suspending classes. Both are taking a wait-and-see attitude.

Meanwhile, Dr. Pallone said the three days missed by students here last week will made be up this Friday, Nov. 11 and April 3. This Friday was listed as a "free day" because of the Western Pennsylvania Conference of the Pennsylvania State Education Association.

On Nov. 11, Veterans Day, students will attend classes until 11 a.m. The April 3 date will cut the Easter vacation short by one day. State law requires that missed days be made up.

It was also learned today that the band festival scheduled for tomorrow night at Belle Vernon stadium has been postponed until next Tuesday because of the epidemic.

Fayette Man Admits to Slaying Near Brownfield

Claims Victim Tried to Keep Him from Girl

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (UP)—William Plichta, 19, was held on a murder charge today after confessing the ambush slaying of an Ohio truck driver who he said tried to break up his romance.

Plichta admitted he fired a pumpkin ball from a 12-gauge shotgun, killing Thomas W. Brownfield, 27, last Friday night. Brownfield was escorting Mrs. Margaret Tate, a divorcee, to her Brownfield, Pa., home when Plichta fired the single blast from about 12 feet.

Mrs. Tate is the mother of Plichta's sweetheart, Alice Faye Tate, 17. Plichta, in a statement signed before James Eadie, chief of Fayette County detectives, said he was "insanely jealous of Alice and was angered by what I thought was a plot...to separate us."

The Tate girl was sent to Cleveland by her mother recently. Plichta said he went to the Ohio city, where Brownfield was employed, two weeks ago to see Alice.

Wanted to Scare Him

Plichta said he meant only to frighten Brownfield.

"But when I got up from a crouched position the gun went off," he said. "He staggered and fell with a groan. I didn't want to kill Tom. I just wanted to scare him so I could get Alice Faye back."

Mrs. Tate and Brownfield, a native of the Fayette County community which bears his family name, had planned to get married next year, police said.

Eadie said Plichta was carrying the shotgun because he was afraid to approach Brownfield unarmed. The victim was a 190-pound six-footer, while Plichta is five-eight and weighs only 140 pounds.

Brownfield died instantly from the pumpkin ball, a half-inch lead slug, which pierced his left shoulder and emerged near the heart. He was shot shortly after he had alighted from his car at the home of Mrs. Tate. Plichta lives two doors away from Mrs. Tate.

McConnells Mill Goes to State

NEW CASTLE, Pa. (UP) — McConnells Mill, long a scenic site for tourists, has been given to the state by the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy for development into a state park.

The 1,900-acre area in Lawrence County's Slippery Rock Valley is well known for its scenic gorge, which is 400-feet deep in some places. State Secretary of Forests and Waters Maurice K. Goddard accepted the site Saturday during a brief ceremony.

The state has engaged Community Planning Services, Inc., of Monroeville, to develop plans for full utilization of the park area. The plans include rehabilitation of the entire area to provide parking lots and picnic areas for Western Pennsylvanians. A swimming lake also may be developed.

Refugees Could Set Middle East Aflame

(U. P. Correspondent Russell Jones is touring the Middle East. This is the first of a number of dispatches he will send from that world trouble spot.)

By RUSSELL JONES

AMMAN, Jordan (UP) — The most dangerous man in the Middle East today may be named Halim Deeb, Abdullah Said or Mustafa Hassim.

He is not a soldier nor does he hold any political power or office. He is not much concerned over the Soviet - Western struggle. In the Arab world, his name is about as common as Jones or Smith or Brown in the United States.

But common as he is, he represents the most explosive force in the Middle East. For Deeb and Said and Hassim are three of more than half a million Arab refugees who crowd this small, arid country.

Along with 900,000 other Arabs they fled homes in Palestine when war started in 1948 between the new Jewish state of Israel and its Arab neighbors. The three settled here and they have never given up the hope of going back.

Together with their refugee multitudes, they could destroy Jordan and set the Middle East aflame.

Live In Squalor

The backgrounds of the three vary. Halim Deeb was an orange grower near Jaffa. Abdullah was a small merchant in Haifa and Mustafa a simple farmer west of Jerusalem.

All three of them share two things: They live in squalor in refugee camps and they are unswervingly determined to return to their homes, now part and parcel of Israel.

Any halt in the United Nations relief which keeps them alive, or any suggestion of an Arab-Israeli settlement without their repatriation, would set Deeb, Said and Hassim on the rampage.

Although none of their houses have plumbing or heating or even glass in the window frames or doors, all own or have access to battery radios.

UNRWA medical teams have eliminated the disease threat and most children have been given at least a basic education and rations to avert starvation, the fact is that Jordan simply cannot absorb the great bulk of refugees. Most of them are ripe for a scheme, however wild, which would mean going home.

The favorite radio station is Egypt's "Voice of Arabs" which spews anti-Western, anti-Jordan propaganda by the hour.

UNRWA Funds Dwindle

UNRWA officials and other Westerners are pessimistic about a possibility of a permanent solution to the problem posed by Deeb, Said and Hassim. Although Iraq development schemes might eventually absorb about 100,000, no Arab politician dares suggest a mass movement.

In the meantime, the situation has been made dangerous by dwindling UNRWA funds.

While prepared to eliminate education training, UNRWA officials say the failure to deliver basic rations would mean revolution.

In the meantime, refugees continue to live in stinking, broiling, fly swarming huts and dream of return.

Fayette School Directors Meet

The annual convention of the Fayette County School Directors will be held today and tomorrow in the courthouse in Uniontown.

Blandon Bulger, president of the Bellmarette Joint School District board, is presiding in courtroom 1 in which a report is being made by A. J. McMullen, county superintendent of schools.

The annual banquet will be held tonight at 6:30 p. m. in the Shady Side Inn.

The convention will conclude tomorrow with a speaking program climaxed with the election of county board members.

Water Supply Is Cleared by State

A temporarily polluted water supply in West Newton has been cleared, it was announced Saturday by state Department of Health authorities.

Some iron deposits were reported in the Youghiogheny River, from which the community draws its water supply, but no illness was reported.

The difficulty arose from the continued drought throughout the area this past summer, authorities report.

Boys Brigade to Present Variety Show Wednesday

A Variety Show will be presented on Wednesday evening in the High School auditorium at 8 o'clock under the sponsorship of the Monessen Boys Brigade Drum and Bugle Corps.

Students from local and valley dancing schools, pantomimists, soloists and other entertainers will take part in the program arranged to entertain all age groups. One of the highlights will be the presentation of the Belle Vernon Drum and Bugle Corps in an exhibition.

The show is being sponsored to earn funds to purchase better musical equipment for the 47 boys in the unit. New classes are set to begin late this month or the first week of October.

In 1957 the unit took part in 23 parades, winning 22 prizes. The award in the 23rd parade was won by Trafford Junior Drum Corps.

The corps will plan a full parade season in 1958 after participating in two more parades this year, the Halloween parade and the Veteran's Day parade.

The local brigade has been operating successfully with the aid of local merchants, Chamber of Commerce and individuals.

PTA Groups in State Convention

National and state leaders from all over Pennsylvania are taking part in the 49th state convention of the Pennsylvania Congress of Parents and Teachers, which opened today in Philadelphia. It will be in session for the next two days.

Mrs. Cecil Sharpe Garey of Scranton is the presiding officer. She is completing her third year in the capacity of president, and will assume a national office.

Blagonravov Porter Beloussov

BREAKS NEWS OF RUSSIAN 'MOON' — Prof. A. A. Blagonravov, top Russian satellite scientist, confers with Richard Porter of the United States and V. V. Beloussov at a reception in the Soviet Embassy, Washington. American scientists congratulated the Russians on the successful launching of the first earth satellite and expressed amazement over the 184-pound weight of the artifical moon. The first U. S. satellite is not expected to be launched until early next spring.

U. S. to Get Secrets, Soviet Scientist Says

WASHINGTON (UP)— Soviet Scientist A. A. Blagonravov indicates the Soviet Union plans to launch another Soviet satellite in the near future He promises that American scientists will be given prior notice this time.

A leading American scientist had harsh comments today about the Russians sending their first moon aloft without advance notice. He said they didn't seem to understand the "team play" called for in the International Geophysical Year (IGY) program.

Blagonravov, who appeared with two colleagues yesterday on a television program (Youth Wants to Know, NBC), also promised that U.S. scientists would be allowed to share the information obtained from Russia's present satellite. He added it should prove helpful in America's own satellite program.

Blagonravov and his colleagues answered most questions readily about the Red moon including the type of rocket used to blast it into space.

"Maybe this is from innocence," he said, "or maybe something more sinister." The scientist, who requested use of his name withheld because of his important official position, did not elaborate.

He said the Russian action forced the United States to waste a lot of time "playing detective."

He added that "does not seem to be in the spirit of IGY."

Asked why the Soviets did not notify other IGY nations that the world's first artificial moon was to be launched, Blagonravov said that it was not a part of the IGY program.

He said the satellite now circling the earth was an "experimental" model designed to shed information for use in future launchings.

Soviet Tests Made On Trips to Moon

BARCELONA, Spain (UP)—Russian scientists said today volunteers from the Soviet armed forces are undergoing tests on the effects of space travel on the human body, as preparation for flights to the moon.

And American scientists attending the eighth International Astronautical Congress here said the Soviets obviously hope to send a satellite to the moon — or circle it and return — within the next two years or less.

Scientists said a trip to the moon might take three days to a week. But first the Soviets want to now more about the dangers of cosmic radiation and small meteorites. They expect to learn this from satellites containing instruments.

Another Soviet scientists said a satellite to detect cosmic radiation was being prepared when they left Moscow. The scientist indicated his delegation would read a number of "very important" papers during the current congress.

American scientists here were frankly dismayed at the impressive reaction all over Europe to the successful Soviet satellite and said they felt the United States had miscalculated badly.

"We could have done it three years ago if we had had the money," said one. "They told us it was too expensive—but if you could rate the Soviet propaganda gain in money, it is far more than anything we would have spent."

The Satellite Feat

THE RUSSIANS' achievement in putting a satellite into outer space before the feat could be accomplished by United States scientists is having a double-barrelled effect. And it isn't clear as yet whether the effect on Soviet scientific prestige is going to be greater than the political and propaganda effect.

Only fools will try to discount the scientific aspect of this accomplishment. It is obviously a dramatic event, a milestone in the history of physical science. Not the milestone, of course, that was the fission of the atom, which, it might be recalled, first occurred in the United States. But still a great practical demonstration of a long familiar scientific theory. And mankind owes the Soviet scientists who performed it a debt of appreciation.

But why the American people, and especially their scientists, should be so all shook up as they seem to be is hard to understand. Had we really come to feel that this country had a monopoly on brains and skill? Since when has it been so necessary that everything worthwhile should carry a label, "Made in America"?

One story has it that the American scientists were "sick" when they heard that the Russian satellite was launched. But why should they be? Did anybody get sick when an Italian invented the wireless? Or when a British researcher discovered penicillin?

This obsession that we have to be first with everything, and especially first before the Russians, seems to be a by-product of the cold war and of the nuclear armaments race. But while it undoubtedly would be dangerous to let the Soviet Union outstrip us technologically, it is foolish to expect that we are going to be first with everything and to be sick when we aren't.

The Russian propagandists will make the most of the satellite achievement. They will use it as more proof of the superiority of Communist development although, if the truth were known, some former Nazis from Germany probably had a lot to do with it.

But we needn't assist the Soviet propagandists by spinning like tops when they pull their strings.

The Hoffa Threat

THE ELECTION of James Hoffa as president of the Teamsters union has been brought off as expected.

We suppose it can be said with some logic that since this is a free country, the members of a free union can have corrupt leaders if they want them. But this would be true only if such a union could be operated in an economic and legal vacuum.

But an organization like the Teamsters does not operate in a vacuum. Its policies and actions bear closely on the lives of great communities and even the nation itself. And when such an organization is led by a man of Hoffa's stripe, a serious public danger is created.

It is not clear just now what should be done about this. But that something will eventually have to be done we can hardly doubt.

Almost everyone agrees that it will be best if the decent elements of the labor movement can supply the remedy. The AFL-CIO has made it quite clear what it thinks of Hoffa and his ilk, and it is to be hoped that means can be found of containing the threat.

But it seems reasonable to think that Congress also will have to devise ways of protecting both the public interest and the interests of union members against leaders of this kind. How this might be done without curtailing the freedom of legitimate unions is a matter for careful study by committees such as that now headed by Senator McClellan.

It is unthinkable, however, that any important segment of the great transportation industry should operate at the whim of an individual with the moral standards of Hoffa.

An Important Task

WE ARE PLEASED to see that an organized public education campaign is being undertaken in behalf of the Monessen City Council's plan to assume responsibility for providing public library service in this community.

The keystone of the plan is the $200,000 bond issue which the voters have been asked to approve at the election on Nov. 5. These funds are necessary for the construction of the proposed new library building on Donner Ave. If the bond issue is approved, Council will have the necessary authority to proceed.

The average city does not build a public library very often. Monessen is nearly 60 years old, and while it has had a library under semi-private auspices for about 20 years, this is the first large undertaking of this kind our citizens as a whole have ever considered.

The plan, therefore, calls for careful consideration on the basis of full information. And it is to insure this kind of consideration that the Committee for the Library has been formed under the chairmanship of Mr. Donald C. Duvall.

Mr. Duvall is recruiting a broadly representative group for this important civic task. The Committee has an inspiring story to put before the city's voters, and when this is done, we have no doubt of the outcome. The library bond issue will be approved on Nov. 5.

Merry-Go-Round—

Footnotes to Little Rock Controversy

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Highlights and footnotes of the White House talks over Little Rock: When the four southern governors met the President, Gov. Frank Clement of Tennessee remarked: "You must be taking Republican vitamin pills. Every time I come up here you look better. You Republicans must be eating high on the hog" . . . Ike was skeptical from the first about Governor Faubus. "For the Lord's sake, get it sound and solid so it won't be necessary to go through this again" he told the four governors. "I don't want this half-settled. ". . . Because of Ike's doubts Gov. Luther Hodges of North Carolina called Faubus several times, read him the proposed statements, even telegraphed him the statements. . . . Significantly, Attorney General Brownell was left out of the governors' talks because they blamed him for persuading the President to use federal troops. Brownell is a long-time friend of E. O. Spencer, Jackson, Miss., hotel owner and leading Mississippi Republican who handled Eisenhower job appointments in that state. It was Brownell's and Spencer's plan to build up the Republican party in the Deep South. Last week Spencer fired a blistering telegram to Eisenhower, resigning. . . . Though Brownell was kept cooling his heels, he was consulted backstage on the drafting of statements.

Mr. Pearson

Under Ike's skin — Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong, Negro jazz master, probably doesn't realize it, but White House insiders say he had quite a bit to do with steeling the President's usually complacent disposition on the race issue . . . . "Eisenhower is two-faced and has no guts" Armstrong exploded last month. "It's getting almost so bad a colored man hasn't got any country. The way they are treating my people in the south the government can go to hell." This really got under Ike's skin. . . . Vice President Nixon also needled Ike, talked to Jackie Robinson, first Negro to star in big-league baseball, and to Roy Wilkins, head of the NAACP, about a meeting of Negro leaders with Eisenhower. While this preliminary talk was under way, Congressman Adam Clayton Powell, the Harlem Democrat who bolted to Ike in '56, sent a telegram to the White House asking for a conference. Other Negro leaders don't like Powell, consider him an unreliable grandstander. He has also been under income-tax investigation. However, he got an immediate reply from the White House agreeing to a meeting. . . . None of these meetings has yet been held. Events at Little Rock broke too rapidly. White House advisers caution that it would be a mistke for the President to meet with Negro leaders during, or too soon after, the Arkansas crisis

New civil rights ahead — The man recommended by Vice President Nixon to head up the new civil rights division inside the Justice Department is young St. John Barrett. Barrett was sent to Monroe, La., in 1956 to investigate the removal of Negroes from the voting rolls. Later, when Louisiana's attorney General Gremillion testified before the House Judiciary Committee regarding this incident, Barrett was given the job of reviewing and refuting his testimony. Nixon liked the job he did . . . . Ex-Gov. Francis Cherry of Arkansas, the man Faubus defeated for re-election, is quoted in Washington as saying: "Of course Faubus never intended to give in to Eisenhower. He's enjoying himself too much.". . . . George Allen, the Mississippian who is Ike's golfing partner, purchased Ike's Gettysburg farm for him and was his partner in a Howard Johnson restaurant, is a great wisecracker. Now there are wisecracks about him. One is: "Will Allen renounce Ike and go back to Mississippi?" Answer is: "No, George can always rise above principle." . . . Faubus's revision of the agreed statement on school protection almost broke up a farewell party for departing Secretary of Defense Charley Wilson. Ike was attending the party given by John Foster Dulles and attended by Mrs. Wilson who once slapped back at the President when her husband criticized the National Guard and Ike championed it. Word came that the National Guard at Little Rock, even though federalized, wasn't doing such a good job inside Central High School, also that Faubus had changed his tune. Ike left the farewell party. . . Mrs. Wilson had the last laugh. Ike concluded that her husband was right about the National Guard — at least in Little Rock.

In Maryland, Liberia — During the governors' breakfast preceding their meeting with Eisenhower, Gov. Hodges stepped to the telephone to call Gov. Faubus. While waiting for him, Clement of Tennessee remarked, almost wistfully, that the two Senators from Tennessee were in Europe and Asia. . . . "You were in Africa this summer, weren't you?" Gov. Collins of Florida asked McKeldin of Maryland. "Yes," replied the one GOP governor present. "I went to Maryland, Liberia". He explained that Negroes from Maryland had gone to Liberia before the Civil War to help found a Negro state in Africa and had named one county "Maryland." "I went over to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the admission of Maryland County into Liberia."

Yugoslavs Fleeing Titoism

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

VIENNA — The mounting flight of Yugoslav citizens in riskful protest against the deteriorating conditions under the Tito Communist regime is today reaching a total ten times greater than what it was only two years ago.

Mr. Drummond

Official figures obtained by this correspondent from the Ministry of Interior of the Austrian government reveal that the flow of anti-Tito, anti-Communist Yugoslavs is even higher than previously published reports — and is continuing.

The latest statistics compiled by Austrian authorities show that by the end of this year at least 16,000 dissident Yugoslavs will have surreptitiously made their way across the 150-mile guarded common frontier between the two countries — an illegal emigration unprecedented under any conditions in Yugoslav history.

Here is the official break-down month by month revealing how the stream of Yugoslav refugees has been growing.

Feb.	577	7	176
Mar.	935	44	171
Apr.	737	19	412

Aug.	2394	521	619
Sept.	15,876	162	222
Total	10,362	1,309	3,343

To assess the meaning of this dangerous, venturesome flight of people from what they deem an unbearable life under Titoism — to escape which they are prepared to risk their lives — it is necessary to compare this picture with the trend of Yugoslav emigration during the past seven years.

Here again are the official figures made available by the Interior authorities here in Vienna. From 1951 through 1953 the number of Yugoslav refugees averaged 1,200 a year. In 1954 the number was 1,922 and in 1955 it was 1,492. Then in 1956 the flow jumped to 5,289 prior to tripling this year.

Still Coming

The refugees are still continuing this week to stream across the border at the rate of 60 per day and if this volume keeps up, as it appears it will, there will be 5,400 more by the end of December. This means by a conservative estimate a total of at least 16,000 "escapees from Tito" into Austria along during 1957. In addition, there is a lesser unnumbered stream of Yugoslav refugees making its way to Italy via Trieste.

Austria is bravely and humanely treating them as political refugees though most of them frankly say that they have left their homeland because economic conditions are so bad. In effect, they have taken political action for economic reasons and the Austrian government is granting most of them asylum. The small percentage which is being turned back comprises either "undesirables" or persons too young to leave without their parents.

The goal of these Yugoslav refugees is not to make a new life in Austria but to escape Yugoslavia by way of Austria and thence to Canada, Australia and other countries.

Unemployment Bad

It is evident from here that the Yugoslav officials are trying to put the best possible face on a mounting emigration which they are in a position to do little about. To stop it effectively would require a frontier sewn with mines and wedged with soldiers.

But nothing which the Tito authorities can say or do can make this development appear other than it is:

1. Evidence of widespread unemployment, which no Communist country is supposed to have or will ever admit, and serious economic deterioration.

2. Proof of wide open distress and dissatisfaction among the people who are taking the frantic course of leaving their homes and often breaking up their families because they see so little hope in the present and so little opportunity in the future.

3. The same kind of failure on the part of Tito's brand of "National Communism" as is increasingly evident with Communism in the satellites and in the Soviet Union itself: that is, the inability of either Titoist Communism or Soviet Communism to win the support of the youth either by indoctrination or by tyranny. The Yugoslav refugees it should be noted, are overwhelmingly young people.

4. Finally, while most of the Yugoslavs say they are fleeing economic disaster, it seems clear that at the back of this emigration is increasing displeasure among the Yugoslav people with Tito's closer relations with Moscow and the fear that this trend bodes ill for their country.

The view of all this which Belgrade would like the world to accept is that this emigration reflects the greater freedom which Tito is giving to the Yugoslav people and that if other countries would only accept Yugoslav emigration visas, the government would regularize the whole thing and permit the dissatisfied to leave the country freely.

Most foreign observers here question this bland view. It is hard to escape the conclusion that if the would-be refugees in numbers of 15,000 or more were to line up in front of the visa window of the Tito Foreign Office, we would soon be getting reports of massive arrests and detentions — perhaps under only a little less ominous conditions as keep former Vice-President Milovan Djilas, Tito's best known dissident, in jail because he criticized Tito Communism in a book.

There are those in the West who still occasionally say that it is only Russian Communism which is malign as a dictatorship and as an economic system.

Today in Austria there are thousands of Yugoslav refugees whose very presence here says that Communism under whatever name or guise — national or satellite or Soviet — produces economic failure and political hell.

Two Republicans Test Labor's Political Power

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UP) — Two prominent campaigning Republicans, more daring than most of their party peers, are testing labor's political power and inviting labor's political reprisals in elections coming up.

Both campaigners are touched with presidential politics.

Mr. Wilson

Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif.) is one campaigner. The other is Malcolm S. Forbes, Republican candidate for governor of New Jersey.

Knowland announced Thursday for governor of California. He will contest California's June, 1958 primary against Gov. Goodwin J. Knight, and a big issue in the campaign is expected to be Knowland's charge that Knight is soft on organized labor.

Knight's spry answer to that has been that in recent elections no California candidate has won a state-wide contest on a platform which contained what might be called an anti-labor plank. Knowland advocates a California right-to-work law such as already is in effect in 18 states. It would outlaw the union shop. Organized labor is dead against it.

Forbes Opposes Meyner

Forbes, the other Republican now defending himself against charges of anti-labor sympathies, opposes Democratic Gov. Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey who seeks re-election next month. There is at least a touch of presidential politics in both the California and New Jersey situations. Knowland may have in mind stepping from the governor's chair to the White House and Meyner must win re-election to sustain his substantial eligibility for the 1960 Democratic presidential nomination.

In late August, Forbes appeared by invitation before the New Jersey Council of the CIO. He ridiculed the idea that the CIO seriously was offering him a chance to qualify for its endorsement. He charged that the CIO decision already had been made, although not announced, to endorse Meyner.

"You seem more interested," Forbes told the CIO leaders, "in having a governor and legislature who are rubber-stamped for some CIO leaders than in having a governor and a legislature which must concern itself with the welfare of all of the people of New Jersey."

With that estimate of what a CIO endorsement would require of him, Forbes told the labor leaders, bluntly:

"I am not your man."

Knight Goads Knowland

Knight has been warning Knowland that a primary contest between them would wreck the Republican Party in California. The governor, too, has goaded the senator with suggestions that Knowland in 1960 hoped to oppose Vice President Richard M. Nixon for the Republican presidential nomination.

Knowland holds that a hot primary contest would be good, not bad, for the party in California. He sought to scuttle charges that he would oppose Nixon in 1960 by asserting that he would serve out his term if elected governor. The next governor of California will take office Jan. 1, 1959, for a four-year term.

With his Senate seat, to which he will not seek re-election, Knowland is surrendering the Republican leadership of that body to which he was named by the late Sen. Robert A. Taft. Knowland is counted a Taft Republican but was not excelled by any Republican senator in the consistency of his support in the 85th Congress of Eisenhower administration measures.

On the basis of 12 key issues, the left wing Americans for Democratic Action reported that Knowland voted "right" 58 per cent of the time. He has bucked the administration on foreign and spending policies.

The Lighter Side—

'It's Me' Is Now O. K., Says Dr. Bergen Evans

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UP)—Dear children: It's perfectly O. K. to say "It's me." Don't let anybody try to bulldoze you into saying "It's I." If they do, tell them to go fly a ballistic missile, or whatever it is kids think of flying nowadays instead of a kite.

This usage has the approval, nay, the backing, of the learned Dr. Bergen Evans, who with his sister, Cornelia, has turned out a new dictionary that has jumped right onto the best-seller list with an audacity unknown to dictionaries in the past.

"In natural, well-bred English 'me' and not 'I' is the form of the pronoun used after any verb, even the verb 'to be,'" the Evanses say in their "A Dictionary of Contemporary American Uses," a 567-page storehouse of definition and advice just published by Random House.

Interviewed over an omelet lunch (a peculiarly appropriate dish for a man who has made a life study of the English language), Dr. Evans was asked to name the most common American speech fault.

Affectation of Gentility

"The affectation of gentility—that's the cause of most of the errors," he replied quickly. "You hear people saying things like: 'He gave it to John and myself' or even 'to John and I.'"

"What makes them do that?" I asked.

"They're afraid of me,'" he said. "They've been told not to say 'It's me.'

"It's an affectation to say 'It's I.'" He continued. "Suppose you are expecting guests at your house and the lady of the house looks out the window and sees them coming. She doesn't exclaim 'It is they,' does she?"

"Nope. But look, Dr. Evans, if it's all right to say 'It's me' because that's standard usage, why in your dictionary do you tell us that 'lie low' is accepted spoken English for remaining hidden or inactive? Most people I hear talking say 'lay low.' Even though it is allegedly ungrammatical."

"Does the dictionary say that? I'd probably use 'lay low' myself," he replied.

"All right, I have here in my notes, 'Lay low is O.K., despite the dictionary.' Now how do you stand on 'O. K.' please?"

Not Formal Yet

"If there is a universal usage now, 'O.K.' is it," he said. "It is probably the most widely used single term in human speech. Yet, as we say in the dictionary, while it is used a billion times a day in speech and business notes and letters, it hasn't been adopted into formal, written usage."

Dr. Evans had just returned from a visit to Ireland, and he said that in Dublin he heard what he described as the English equivalent of "okeydoke." It's "righty-o."

The dictionary contains some fascinating items, such as: "smooch, a facetious term in the brighter young set for kissing. Is not the slang term they probably think it is but a good old English word, much used by the brighter young Elizabethans ('I had rather than a bend of leather she and I might smouch together'—1600)."

They hedge a bit on "ain't." They say it ain't considered standard in any way you hear it used, "with the possible exception" of when it means "am not" in a question—"ain't I?" prodded on this, Dr. Evans said he wouldn't say 'Ain't I?' himself—"but I don't object to it."

Comment on Satellite

Comment on the earth satellite launched Friday by Soviet scientists:

Moscow — Soviet statement announcing the satellite's launching:

"As a result of intense, large-scale research conducted by Soviet research institutes and designing organizations, the world's first artificial earth satellite has been developed in the Soviet Union. On 4th October 1957, the first satellite was successfully launched in the USSR."

COLUMBUS, Ohio—Larry Ochs, the volunteer moonwatcher who was the first person to report seeing the satellite over this country:

"When I first saw the object it appeared as a slowly moving point of light moving from west to east . . . it had a sort of yellowish color and didn't show any appreciable diameter . . . it was too small to tell if it had any shape."

WASHINGTON — Dr. Richard Porter, a member of the U.S. committee for the International Geophysical Year:

"It would have been nice to have been first, but if we can't let's be glad it was done at all."

World Series Causing Epidemic?

That flu cold or respiratory ailment epidemic (take your pick—any one of them is rough) is an odd malady. It seems to strike only teen-agers and adults as experienced by the many high school football teams and their coaching staffs riddled but the junior high squads virtually untouched . . . Of course one school official (not here) had another answer for many absentees . . . He said "we shoudn't lose sight of the fact that the 'bug' hit during World Series time" . . . He added that he doubted if the school rolls would have been so depleted had it come at another time of year . . . It seemed to be a Class AA epidemic as only Rostraver of all valley A schools suffered from the effects of whatever it is that has caused all the commotion.

Carroll Township's initial grid team made a good showing in its opener despite losing by a lopsided 33-7 score . . . After getting over first half jitters the Lancers held the heavier, more experienced Aliquippa eleven on even terms . . . With a "loaded" schedule due to a late start in arranging a grid card the Carrolls are just out to "get the feel" of things this season against the likes of Brownsville, Turtle Creek, Glassport and Scott Township but the Carrollers will be heard from before too long . . . Bellmar High grid coach Bap Manzini will jump from football to winter recreation when the grid season ends as he helps supervise the Fayette City cold weather athletic program at the new Community Building there.

Troychak Rates Highly at Penn

Dennis Troychak, ex-Monessen star, now playing first string tackle for an improved Pennsylvania eleven, rates highly on the Penn campus and with the coaching staff, according to Glenn Shepler, the Bellmar gridder sitting out this semester from the Quaker campus . . . Indirectly and definitely not on purpose, Troychak was responsible for Shepler's being hurt in a scrimmage game . . . The former Hurricane back was playing a backer-up slot on defense and intent on the ball-carrier and his interference, didn't notice Troychak charging in from the blind side. Upon contact Shepler fell with his arm bent behind his head and strained his right shoulder muscles . . . As Shepler describes it "it was a terrific block . . . only I wish it had been on somebody else or that I had been expecting it."

Crowded Sports Week End

What a sports week-end this past one turned out to be with a Pitt game Friday night, a Steeler game Saturday night, World Series games Saturday and yesterday to say nothing of Bellmar and California football games Friday . . . And just think, if it hadn't been for the flu scare there would have been a Monessen-Hempfield clash, a Big Six grid contest, etc., . . . Donora's line troubles continue to mount with Neil Clark, veteran guard, sidelined indefinitely due to recurrent headaches . . . If the Dragons' forward wall ever gets straightened out to go with that talented backfield . . . Wow!

Series to Get Rougher With Burdette Hurling

By OSCAR FRALEY

MILWAUKEE (UP)—The World Series, all square at two games each, promises to get rougher today as an embittered band of New York Yankees who were beaten by their own patented medicine — the home run — go up against cocky and confident Lew Burdette.

They charged by insinuation that the big right-handed pitcher of the Milwaukee Braves was throwing a "spitter" when we won the second game of the classic at Yankee Stadium. It was a rough game of constant "brush back" pitches which at one stage approached the "duster" state and the Yankees have memories which would shame an elephant.

"They scare me," Burdette said, holding out a hand which was as steady as steel. "I'm not saying I'll beat them, but I'm not going out there to lose."

Hank Bauer, the guy the Yankees call "scrap iron," made most of the "spitter" insinuations against Burdette, several times asking the plate umpire to inspect the ball. But Burdette has heard and laughed at these charges often before.

Burdette Cleared

"Let 'em think I'm going to throw a spitter," he chuckles mirthlessly. "I don't, but if they think I do, it gives me another pitch."

By official decree of no less an authority than National League President Warren Giles, Burdette was cleared last April of throwing a spitball. The Cincinnati Reds yelled the loudest and Giles silenced even the raucous Redlegs with his official edict.

Beating the Yankees again would be particularly sweet to the 30-year-old Floridian because he once was a Yankee farmhand. Lew had a brief look, or what the ballplayers call a "cup of coffee," by going up with the Yanks at the end of 1950. But he appeared in only two games and they were both minute inspections.

Then, in 1951, the Yankees sent Burdette to the Braves as part of the deal in which they acquired Johnny Sain. It helped them to win the pennant and the subsequent World Series — but Lew would like it to cost them this one.

Has Another Reason

There's another reason, in addition to the money and fame which would accrue, why he'd like to win this one and help the Braves wrap up their first world championship. Last winter, after Milwaukee had lost the 1956 National League pennant to the Brooklyn Dodgers, Jackie Robinson charged that it was because the Braves were "a bunch of playboys." Burdette was identified as being among the bright light losers.

"That game Sunday, when Eddie Mathews hit a home run in the 10th to win for us, could have been the turning point of the Series for us," Burdette said. "It would have been disastrous had we lost and been down, three games to one, instead of being even. But this gave us a great lift and I think we'll be tough from here on in."

The Yankees know he'll be rugged. He was in beating them, 4 to 2, in the second game of the classic.—And then there's always that "spitter," whether you choose to believe it or not. The Yankees have their own ideas.

Burdette does, too. And, win or lose, he's ready to let 'em guess.

Important Grid Games on Tap For Valley Teams This Week

Important games are on tap in the valley this week, especially in the Big Five Conference, providing the flu decides to focus its attention elsewhere.

First of all, there is a game carded for here with the Greyhounds hosting Brownsville in an important conference clash. Brownsville was to have opened its Big Five card against Charleroi last week but the game was postponed until the end of the season. Monessen has stopped Monongahela, 20-7, in its lone conference game.

Other games involving Big Five schools show Charleroi risking its unbeaten string against tough Ambridge, Donora at Redstone, and Monongahela at West View.

Donora may have found itself with an impressive victory over Erie Cathedral Friday night. Charleroi and Ambridge are both unbeaten and Monongahela could get back on the right track against the Viewers.

Other games this week show Bellmar hosting Elizabeth-Forward, Rostraver entertaining North Huntingdon, West Newton at East Huntingdon, California meeting Burgettstown at home, South Huntingdon at Sewickley.

Windber Defeats Johnstown, 21-13

Windber, 38-37 winners over Monessen in the first game of the season, copped an impressive 21-13 victory over Johnstown, a future 'Hound foe (Oct. 25) in Windber's "big game" of the season Saturday night.

Sparking the Ramblers in their winning offensive was Bob Minnitti, quarterback, who made two touchdowns. He went over, to climax drives of 56 and 62 yard drives. The other Windber touchdown was made by Tom Marron from the eight yard line.

Scoring for Johnstown was Dick Goodman, who made both touchdowns on 13 and four yard efforts.

WINDBER	14	7	0	0	—21
JOHNSTOWN	0	0	13	0	—13

Touchdown: Marron; Tavalsky; Minnitti; Goodman (2). Extra points: Tavalsky (3); Azar. Missed extra points: Azar. Officials: Bache, Cortese, Vaughn, Beckett, Woisko.

Pitt Panthers Await Invasion By Cornhuskers

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Pitt Panthers return to the familiar confines of Pitt Stadium Saturday when they face the Nebraska Cornhuskers, reputedly a weaker opponent than the local team's first three.

The Cornhuskers defeated Kansas State last week but were routed previously by Army and Washington State.

The Panthers, who arrived home from the West Coast Saturday night, opened practice today at Ellsworth Field. Several players are injured but Coach Johnny Michelosen hoped to have them ready for the Cornhuskers.

Quarterback Bill Kaliden and halfback Jim Theodore have leg injuries. Halfback Pete Prince, suffering from headaches after the Southern Cal game, has been sent to Mercy Hospital as a precautionary measure.

Fullback Dick Bowen sat out the last two games because of an ankle injury which has not responded to treatment. He may miss the Nebraska contest.

City Recreation Activities Delayed

Monessen City Recreation Director Tom D'Errico announced today that the Civic Center gymnasium and game room would open next Monday at 4 o'clock. The hours will be from 4 to 6 p. m. and from 7 to 9 p. m. Saturday the hours will be 9:30 a. m. until 7:30 p. m. with a full schedule of activities set.

D'Errico also announced that men's swimming classes would start next Thursday evening 7 until 9 o'clock at the Junior High School pool.

Browns, Baltimore Only Unbeaten 11s In National Loop

By EARL WRIGHT

The Cleveland Browns, who hold most of the patents on football defense, and the Baltimore Colts, who have some pending, grabbed the National League's division leads today with the only perfect records after two weeks of play.

The Cleveland and Baltimore defensive units provided the only hints of consistency as the 12-club league rocked under five upsets for the second straight week. The Chicago Bears, defending Western Division champions, loomed as the "bust" of the season as they took their second straight whipping.

Cleveland scored a 23-12 victory over the Steelers Saturday night at Pittsburgh and took the undisputed Eastern Division lead when the Washington Redskins surprised the Cardinals Sunday at Chicago, 37-14.

Baltimore upset the Bears Saturday night, 21-10, and became the sole Western leader when the Detroit Lions scored a 24-14 Sunday victory over the Green Bay Packers.

The New York Giants were favored over the Eagles by seven points Saturday night at Philadelphia and were lucky to win 24-20.

In the other Sunday clash, the Forty-Niners thrilled 59,637 rooters at San Francisco by rallying to surprise the Los Angeles Rams, 23-20.

Cleveland and Baltimore have 2-0 records while Philadelphia and the Bears have 0-2 marks. All the other teams have 1-1 records.

News Names Stan, Ted, Pierce Tops

ST. LOUIS (UP)— Stan Musial, Ted Williams, Warren Spahn and Billy Pierce today were picked by the Sporting News for this year's outstanding player and pitcher awards in the major leagues.

Calling it the "season of old pros", the national baseball weekly noted that all four of the players were over 30 years of age and three of them were closer to 40.

Nine Teams Out Of WPIAL Races

Nine teams were eliminated from the three title football races in the WPIAL over the week end.

The latest squads to fall by the wayside were: Class AA — Mt. Lebanon; Class A — Canonsburg, Moon, Bellmar, New Brighton and Kittanning; and Class B — Elders Ridge, Bridgeville and East Deer.

Monessen Grid Teams Await Word on Games

Flu Situation Somewhat Improved But Junior High, Varsity Tilts Unsettled

Word from Monessen High School this morning had the flu situation apparently letting up as the absenteeism wasn't as high but the athletic teams still weren't certain if they would see any action this week.

One team, the Jayvee eleven, knew it wouldn't see action against Clairton as that game was called off last week when it became apparent that the players wouldn't be ready for a game tonight even if they did report to school this morning.

The Junior High eleven reportedly won't play its game Wednesday against Monongahela but this postponement may come at the request of Monongahela school authorities.

HS Games Uncertain

On the high school front the Greyhounds are scheduled to host Brownsville but Coach Armand Niccolai won't know if he has enough players back from the sick list until he counts noses at practice tonight.

Brownsville is in just as tough a situation as the locals with most of the grid squad sidelined. In fact the game with Charleroi, set for last Friday night was postponed until the end of the season, so whether the Brownies can play this week will also depend on the turnout for tonight's drills, according to Coach Alex Barantovich.

The Greyhounds haven't had a practice session for over a week now except for 10 or 12 players kicking the ball around and doing a little passing.

Even Coach Niccolai and assistant coach Andy Kuzemka were floored by the "bug" with assistant Harry McCurdy sending the "skeleton squad" through its drills last week.

Billing Bear in Rolling Rock Repeat Victory

LIGONIER, Pa. (UP)—Billing Bear, owned by Mrs. Cordelia S. May of Ligonier, became the first horse in the history of the Rolling Rock races to score a repeat victory in the $5,000 International Gold Cup event.

Jockey Kenny Field, who rode the Bear to victory last Saturday in the 20th annual event, also scored a first. He became the first jockey to win the 2½ mile race over 16 brush hurdles. Field won in 1952 aboard Uncle Joe, while the Bea won in 1954.

In addition, Billing Bear broke the old track record of 5:08 held by Uncle Joe by a full second.

Evian was second and Crag third in the Gold Cup, while Montadet and Narcissus II, the favorites, were far back of the Bear, which won by six lengths. The three finishers qualify to run in next year's Grand National at Aintree, England.

Waynesburg Drops 13-7 Decision

Westminster copped a hard-fought 13-7 decision from Waynesburg College at Uniontown Saturday afternoon to extend the Titans winning streak to 23 games in a contest played at Uniontown High Stadium.

The Titans scored early in the first period when Jack Bestwick passed to end Dave Edwards and then converted after the TD.

Dave Atkinson tallied Waynesburg's only marker in the third period on a six-yard scamper around end and Norm Williams plunged for the extra point.

The winning touchdown came in the fourth quarter when three successive 15 yard penalties put Westminster on the Waynesburg one yard line. Bestwick plunged over from there. The extra point attempt was blocked by center John George.

Waynesburg picked up 12 first downs to eight for Westminster. Penalties plagued the Jackets throughout the afternoon, and they were penalized a total of 135 yards.

Coach Johnny Popovich's lads will be at home Saturday, Oct. 19, when they play host to St. Vincent College in the homecoming game.

Score by Periods:

Waynesburg	0	0	7	0	—7
Westminster	7	0	0	6	—13

Touchdowns: Waynesburg — Atkinson; Westminster — Edwards, Bestwick.

Extra points: Waynesburg—Williams.

Army - Notre Dame Clash Highlights College Grid Card

By TIM MORIARTY

The preliminaries out of the way, college football heads into the "meaty" part of the season this week with two star attractions — Army vs. Notre Dame and Michigan vs. Michigan State.

The powerful Cadets and the rebounding Irish will meet at Philadelphia fo the first time since 1947, when their classic series was discontinued by mutual agreement.

In games this season, Notre Dame followed up a 12-0 opening-game victory over Purdue by blanking Indiana, 26-0, last Saturday. Army galloped to a 27-13 victory over Penn State for its second straight victory. So the long-awaited Irish-Cadet series renewal shapes up as a showdown between a solid Notre Dame line and Army's raft of breakaway runners.

Next Saturday's Michigan vs. Michigan State game at Ann Arbor should prove whether either team has the stuff to challenge defending champion Oklahoma for this year's national title.

In other major games next weekend involving top-ranked teams, Minnesota visits Northwestern, Texas A&M entertains Houston, Oregon State hosts Idaho, Navy visits California, Iowa is at Indiana, Duke visits Rice, and Auburn entertains Kentucky.

Wash-Jeff Loses, 19-0

MEADVILLE, Pa., Oct. 7 — Allegheny College scored twice in the second quarter and once in the final period to defeat Washington & Jefferson, 19-0, here Saturday.

Steelers Take Day Off; Cards Next Opponent

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Coach Buddy Parker gave his Pittsburgh Steelers a day off today but will resume drills Tuesday in preparation for Sunday's game with the Chicago Cardinals at Forbes Field.

Parker, recovering from an influenza attack, was reported much improved today although he remained confined to his hotel room. He bemoaned the 23-12 loss to the Cleveland Browns Saturday night.

"We gave that one away," Parker said. "You can't make mistakes against teams like Cleveland and the (Chicago) Bears and expect to win."

The Steelers came out of the Cleveland game with several injuries, the most serious being guard Bill Michael's fractured knee. Michael, a rookie from Ohio State, may be out of action for five or six weeks.

Halfback Dick Young suffered pulled leg ligaments and fullback Bill Bowman injured his shoulder. X-rays will be taken today. Young and Bowman were expected to be ready for Sunday's game along with end Bill McPeak, who remained out of the Brown game because of a bruised side.

Trafford Tops West Newton, 19-0

West Newton High Schools Hornet gridders suffered their first defeat of the 1957 season in dropping a 19-0 decision to Trafford Saturday afternoon at Trafford.

Quarterback Ken Matulia tallied twice for the Tomahawks and kicked a placement for the only extra point to pace his mates.

John Minnicucci, Trafford left half, intercepted a pass and ran 32 yards to score in the first quarter. Ken Matulia converted.

Matulia grabbed a pass from Jim Johnson and ran 20 yards for his first touchdown in the third period. He scored again from the [illegible] in the last quarter.

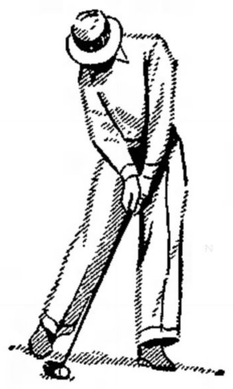
DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF



Right Elbow In Place

The right elbow is the key to all the power of the right side in the downswing. In taking the club back, keep that right elbow in close to the body as the hips and shoulders pivot to the right. In swinging down and hitting the ball, it's still absolutely necessary to keep the right elbow in place.

Today's drawing shows a golfer just as his club face strikes the ball. Note that the right elbow is in close, giving his right side a chance to supply power to the shot. In this way, the body adds its power to that supplied by the hands and arms.

If the right elbow strays away from the right side, the swing loses power because your body isn't working for you. You're hitting with just your arms and hands; that's not good enough.

Braves Favored to Take Lead

Mantle May Sit Out of Tilt Today

By LEO H. PETERSEN

MILWAUKEE (UP)— The Milwaukee Braves, riding the giddy crest of Ed Mathews' "life-saver homer," were even money today to take the series lead over a New York Yankee team that may be hobbled by the loss of slugger Mickey Mantle.

Mantle, removed from Sunday's game just before Mathews' exploded his 10th-inning homer, said he "doubted" he could play. Yankee manager Casey Stengel said he thought Mickey "will play," but conceded he wouldn't know until he sees Mantle at County Stadium today.

Thus, the whole series hung for some 12 hours over the question of whether the Yankee super star would be available for the final three games. The Yankees failed to beat the Brooklyn Dodgers when Mantle was sidelined during much of the 1955 series.

That's how much respect the Braves earned Sunday when they bounced back for a 7-5 victory after it appeared the Yankees were about to make the "kill." The familiar pattern of Yankee World Series victories seemed to be asserting itself when Elston Howard's three-run homer tied it in the ninth and Hank Bauer's 10th-inning triple put the world champions in front. But Mathews' homer quickly reversed it.

So, even Whitey Ford, 3-1 victor over the Braves in the opener, was rated no better than "even money" today when he matches curves with Lew Burdette a 4-2 winner over the Yankees in the second game. The Yankees are 7-5 to win the series.

Cooler Weather Seen

Somewhat cooler weather is expected after two balmy Indian summer days for the Braves' last game of the year in Milwaukee. Tuesday is an off-day for travel and then the series shifts back to New York where the sixth and seventh games could be played on Wednesday and Thursday.

Ford, 29, yielded only five hits in last Wednesday's opener and will be shooting for his sixth World Series victory — only one less than the record shared by ex-Yankee greats Red Ruffing and Allie Reynolds. He had an 11-5 record during the American League season and is essentially a curveball pitcher with a fast ball that commands respect if not awe.

Burdette pitched a seven-hitter in the second game and shut out the Yankees over the last six innings. He's a low curve ball pitcher frequently accused of throwing the outlawed "spitter." He won 17 and lost nine during the National League season.

Should the Braves go on to give Milwaukee a world championship, Sunday's fourth game will be singled out as the turning point of the series.

The Yankees weren't hitting 36-year-old Warren Spahn much but they looked sharp and alert as if they could smell the big payoff coming and they tied it at 4-4 with two out in the ninth when Howard delivered his homer after singles by Yogi Berra and Gil McDougald.

The Milwaukee bubble appeared burst and the Braves seemed to be dead injuns when Kubek's single and Hank Bauer's triple gave the Yankees a 5-4 lead in the 10th.

Braves Rip Back

But the Braves — who have to read those "choke-up" stories every time they lose a game— ripped right back. Tommy Byrne gave them the opening when he hit pinch-hitter Nippy Jones and the Braves suddenly were in business because the next two hitters were Red Schoendienst and Johnny Logan.

Of all the Braves, these are the two most versatile players — the sort that abound on the Yankee squad. Haney, of course, was bunting and Schoendienst laid it down like the book says it should be.

Then came the scrappy little Logan and he showed 'em why he's known as a clutch player with a solid double into the left field corner that tied it up.

Now the Yankees had their backs to the wall and Stengel had to play for defense all the way to stop the run. He moved Kubek to center, took out Mantle, and inserted 41-year-old Enos Slaughter in left field.

Mathews didn't make a hit in the first three games, but he had rapped a solid double in the fourth inning and he put a 2-2 pitch into the right field bleachers that turned County Stadium and perhaps all Milwaukee into a bedlam of noise.

Penn State's Eastern Title Hopes Dealt Severe Blow by Army 11

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UP) —Penn State, its eastern title hopes dealt a setback by Army, today prepared for the invasion of upset-minded William & Mary.

William & Mary surprised the experts by beating Virginia Tech last week. The Nittany Lions collapsed against Army which scored three touchdowns in the third period Saturday for a 27-13 victory.

The Cadets put on an amazing ground display when the second half opened and tore the State line apart. A record home crowd of 32,660 saw the Lions take a 13-6 halftime lead on the play of quarterback Al Jacks and halfback Dave Kasperian.

But Army stormed back in the third period with Pete Dawkins scoring twice and Harry Walters, a reserve fullback, adding another touchdown.

State went 57 yards in 14 plays after taking the opening kickoff. Kasperian bulled over from the three. Army drove back to score in a 48 yard march negotiated in 12 plays with Bob Anderson going over from the five to tie the score at 6-all.

Penn State went ahead in the second period with Les Walters taking a pass from Jacks in the end zone to windup a 38-yard push.

Neckties, formerly known as cravats, were first worn extensively in Europe during the French revolution.

Shoeshine Helps Braves to Win

MILWAUKEE (UP)— A shoeshine helped the Braves get all even and may yet mean a winning $10,000 World Series share for each Milwaukee player.

The record books will always say the Braves polished off the Yankees 7-5, Sunday on Eddie Mathews, Milwaukee players generally agreed today the game-winning homer was set up by a careless shine applied to pinch-hitter Nippy Jones' shoes.

The Braves trailed, 5-4, when Jones batted for winning pitcher Warren Spahn to open the last of the 10th. Southpaw Tommy Byrne, on the mound for the Yankees, delivered a pitch to Jones that plate umpire Augie Donatelli first called a ball.

"That ball hit me," Jones said, pointing to his left foot. "I mean it. Take a look at the ball."

Donatelli inspected the ball, found a black shoe polish mark on it and awarded Jones first base because there was the evidence, all right, in black and white.

Felix Mantilla ran for Jones and after moving up on a sacrifice, scored the tying run on Johnny Logan's double off Bob Grim. Mathews followed with the clincher.

Toronto Seen as Majors' Club Site

MILWAUKEE (UP)—Owner Lou Perini of the Milwaukee Braves said today he thought Toronto would be a logical site for a major league club should the National and American leagues decide to expand.

Perini said he favored Toronto over Montreal because the weather there generally "isn't quite as cold as it is in Montreal."

"Toronto hast hree million people within a hundred-mile radius," Perini added. . .and the fans there are exceptionally sportsminded.

A proposed ordinance under which the city would turn over a site for a major league park in Chavez Ravine to the Dodgers is expected to be brought up for a second reading today. Last week proponents of the plan defeated four attempts to attach crippling amendments to the proposal.

Milk Tanks in Use

By UNITED PRESS

The use of bulk milk cooling tanks has increased sharply on Pennsylvania dairy farms, with some 3,000 now in operation on the state's 40,000 farms.

Ivan Parkin, Penn State extension dairy specialist said the switch to tanks is spotty and uneven, due to the re-organization necessary to change over and the increased initial cost to farmers. But Parkin said once tanks are in operation, no one returns to the milk can method.

The trend toward bulk milk cooling and handling on farms continued through this year, and predictions are that it will continue in most markets next year.

Large producers are able to convert more easily than small producers, and a switch to tanks usually is followed by an expansion of herds. In federal order markets, bulk tanks delivered an average of over 750 pounds daily while the overall average was only 450 pounds.

Tank Types

Dairymen thinking of a changeover to tanks have two types to select from, as well as two types of refrigeration.

Parkin said tanks are either vacuum or atmospheric with the atmospheric being used most frequently in Pennsylvania because they are less costly and do not require pipeline milking.

Vacuum tanks are preferred, usually, Parkin said, where pipeline milking is used to carry milk from the cow to the tank without any receiver in between. Pipeline milking is relatively rare in Pennsylvania.

Atmospheric tanks also may be used with pipeline milkers, with the milk coming through the pipe into a receiver.

Types of refrigeration used on bulk tanks are the "direct expansion system" and the "ice bank sweet water system." Both cool milk at about the same speed, but Parkin said the ice bank unit uses slightly more electricity than the direct expansion.

Nation's First Atomic Power Plant Is Charged

SHIPPINGPORT, Pa. (UP)—The first step toward producing power by atomic energy was taken here Sunday when the nation's first full-scale atomic power plant was charged with uranium fuel.

A reactor core, charged with uranium, was lowered into a 250-ton stainless steel container by technicians. The job of lowering the core began Saturday night and took more than eight hours to complete.

The 58-ton core, heart of the reactor system, was moved into position with only six-hundredths of an inch clearance between walls of the steel container, known as a pressure vessel.

The plant, located about 25 miles northwest of Pittsburgh is expected to start producing power in about two months. The Westinghouse Electric Corp. built the reactor. The Duquesne Light Co. will operate the plant. The Atomic Energy Commission supervised construction, which will cost about 85-million dollars.

The reactor core holds about 15 tons of natural uranium surrounding about 165 pounds of highly-enriched uranium "seed." The reactor contains 32 control rods for controlling the atom-splitting or heat producing process.

The "hot" nuclear reaction will take place within the 58-ton core. The nuclear furnace will heat high pressure water, which will turn a second supply of water into steam. The steam will then produce electricity for Pittsburgh district industry and homes.

Gromyko Refuses To Budge in Talk with Dulles

WASHINGTON (UP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko hewed to the Kremlin's hard line and refused to budge during his lengthy week end parley with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Diplomatic experts held this conclusion today after analyzing the four-hour talk in the library of Dulles' home. It was the longest private conference ever held between an American secretary of state and a Soviet foreign minister.

Dulles it was learned called the meeting Saturday to underscore his concern over the "deterioration" in American-Soviet relations in recent months.

He blamed this situation on Soviet arms policy in the Middle East, sharply-worded Soviet notes to Western powers, and Moscow's refusal to agree to a first step disarmament program.

Neither mentioned any progress toward solving these problems.

Girl Is Killed Following Her Wedding Saturday

NEW YORK (UP)—"Til death do you part."

Hearing these words at the end of their wedding ceremony, an 18-year-old refugee from Communism and her 19-year-old American sweetheart left church Saturday, happy as newlyweds are.

Today, the girl, Merika Lang Daly, is dead, killed instantly in a two-car collision as she and her husband of one day, Jeramiah Daly, were driving to Idlewild Airport yesterday on their way for a two-week Florida honeymoon.

Young Daly was injured in the accident. He suffered cuts and bruises. When he was told his bride was dead, he sobbed, "I knew it. I knew it."

The bride had fled to the United States with her mother and brother from Estonia six years ago after the Communist secret police spirited her father away one night without warning.

The family moved to New York, and Merika went to high school. There she met Daly, and their romance blossomed.

Daly's father had fixed up an apartment for the teen-age couple to live in, and Merika spent many weeks helping to decorate it. She and her husband spent only one night there.

Final Test of Nuclear Series Set Off Today

ANGEL'S PEAK, Nev. (UP) — The nuclear device "Morgan" blasted the new day at 5 a.m. p.s.t. today bringing to a close in flame and fury the nation's 1957 series of atomic tests.

The device, 24th exploded in the spring and summer series, was cradled under a plastic balloon tethered 500 feet above the Yucca Flat test site, 75 miles northwest of Las Vegas.

The blast ripped the morning sky with a force equivalent to between 5,000 and 10,000 tons of TNT and sent the familiar—but still awesome — mushroom cloud rising high into the sky.

Blinding white light of the flash was seen hundreds of miles away. The shocking force of the wave swept across the desert area, swirling up dust and sand.

Thirty - three experiments were hooked to Morgan on a sequence timer, but there were no military or civil effects tests. The troops had gone.

Red Satellite May Unite Free World

NEW YORK (UP)—Russia, in the ecstasy of triumph in being the first to launch a man-made satellite, may have done capitalism its greatest service, some Wall Street experts believed today.

Not that the financial district regarded the man - made moon as having any great economic significance in itself, but many in the Street felt it would unite the free world in a new scientific drive to outdo the Soviet achievement. It would dramatize the missile project.

Getting such moon into the stratosphere, it was believed, may have been accomplished with an intercontinental ballistic missile which in itself represents a menace to world safety.

Hence, the financial experts concluded that this event would set off a new drive by the United States and other nations of the free world to rush perfection of a missile of similar or even greater scope.

Such program, it was felt, would involve spending vastly more money for defense. It could mean the end of the Washington economy move, a new debt ceiling, a resumption of spending in the aircraft plants lately hit by government cutbacks in payments.

An all-out drive to produce an intercontinental ballistic missile and the vast cost involved could restimulate the inflationary forces to the point where Federal Reserve pressure would be inadequate to stem the tide, it was felt.

But coming at a time when business generally was cutting back somewhat on new plant expansion and inventory accumulation, the move could reinvigorate the whole economy in a healthy resumption of the advance.

As a result, many felt that here was the one factor which hadn't been reckoned with for the 1958 economic life. What had been considered a drab outlook—a high economy without a zoom—could be turned into a new spurt which could make previous record years look small.

And if that were the case, the market men felt that stocks easily could zoom to new heights on big volume.

All this doesn't mean that Wall Street is war-minded. War is considered a stock market deterrent.

But big boosts in government spending and the vast use of raw materials that might be involved in a giant missile program would be considered highly bullish, according to market experts.

An all-out missile race could have its difficult side, as well as its bright side, the financial experts pointed out. Spending of this type, it was noted, is not constructive to the economy as a whole. It does involve injecting huge sums into the business world and could set off a big boom.

The whole move would involve new inflationary forces, it was said, and these could so strain the economy that more drastic measures than tight money might be imposed eventually.

Human Brain Is Marvel

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK, (UP)—Science has worked out plausible mathematics to explain a mechanical marvel which all of us carry around in our heads. The figuring will be proved, however, only when science is able to construct a mechanical brain which can listen either to its left "ear" or its right one or to both and make something out of whatever it hears.

The new mathematics represent an advance toward a solution of "the cocktail party problems" which has fascinated physical scientists for some years. The puzzle is this: How in the world can anyone listen intelligently to only one voice with one ear or both while both his ears are being assailed by many voices, loud soft, near and far?

Independent Mechanisms

Mathematically it is demonstrated that each ear has an independent mechanism which permits it to relate all the various sounds which enter it—any one sound to all and any of the other sounds. With such a mechanism, either or both ears can select any sound or sounds it wishes to let in.

Those admitted sounds are then passed on to a central mechanism which has to relate what the left ear hears with what the right ear has picked up and make something of the mess of sounds, which is a very neat trick that all of us perform without ever drawing a long breath over it.

What comes out of this second mechanism is passed on to third, and one which still stubbornly defies mathematics and is one of the toughest problems which must be solved before there can be a true mechanical brain. This is the mechanism of judging—not only judging where the sounds come from and what they mean but also judging whether they are worth listening to.

Report From London

The mathematics are those of Drs. Bruce McA. Sayers and E. Colin Cherry of the University of London, contributed to the Acoustical Society of America. Cherry is a veteran worker at the problem of explaining scientifically how our brains can tell the direction a sound is coming from when we're hearing it with two ears and how our brains can "pull apart" two persons who are speaking at once.

Previously he had demonstrated that there is a "fusion" process going on in our heads. Only if our two ears are hearing the same sound, is it possible for us to tell where the sound is coming from and how far away it is.

He had proved that when both ears hear the same sound, the listener can't possibly separate the sensations of one ear from those of the other—the "fusion" is that complete. If he listens to one speaker with one ear and to another speaker with the other, he can't possibly understand both at the same time, but he can understand one of the other or one after the other.

Safer Surgery Sought

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

SCIENTISTS of the College of Medicine at the University of Illinois are working on a program designed to overcome one of the chief hazards of cancer surgery.

During an operation to eliminate malignant tumors, there is a danger that live "crumbs" may spill over and seed the system with new colonies. Now, for the first time, there is a concerted effort to try to evaluate and overcome this danger.

The scientists already have shown experimentally that prophylactics could overtake and destroy cells escaping from a cancer. Because of this, they have adopted surgical techniques and drugs designed to protect patients from this lethal spillage of cancer cells.

Certain measures are now mandatory at Illinois in operations for cancer of the breast, colon, rectum and stomach. They include:

Tying off, early in the operation, all blood vessels serving the operative area and injecting a drug into the abdominal cavity or veins at the end of the operation.

Strong Solution

Bathing the area with a solution capable of killing any cancer cells which might have spilled over.

Injecting drugs into veins on each of three days following the operation to chase down and destroy any cancer cells which might have escaped into the bloodstream or wound.

The drugs being used in the program are nitrogen mustard and thioTEPA. Experiments have shown both to have cancer-killing properties.

Nitrogen mustard, a deadly poison gas, was prepared for World War II, but was never used.

They must be used cautiously, since both are toxic: they destroy the blood-making bone marrow, leaving the patient easy prey for infection.

In the Illinois experiments, four small doses will be administered instead of one large one.

New Show Makes Debut Tonight

Leave it to Beaver, a new domestic comedy series dealing with the trials and adventures of two young boys and their harrassed but understanding parents, makes its debut on WIIC Channel 11 this evening at 6:00 o'clock.

Leave it to Beaver is a family comedy. Its central chracter is seven-year-old Beaver (Jerry Mathers) youngest member of the clan, whose adventures and misadventures on the road to growing up keep his 13-year-old brother Wally (Tony Dow) and his parents in a state of confusion and alarm.

Barbara Billingsley and Hugh Beaumont play the roles of the parents.

World of TV—

Polly Bergen Not So Sure About TV Show

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP) — The TV machine is stuffed with musical shows this season — 11 new ones and seven holdovers. One of the big puzzlers in the trade is how many will wind up victims of fallout.

"A lot of them aren't going to make it," said Polly Bergen with melancholy detachment. "A lot of people are going to be off. Personally, I wasn't too sure myself whether I wanted to do this show. And I haven't decided yet whether I was right in doing a series."

Miss Bergen, a 27-year-old export of Knoxville (where she was issued as Nellie-Paulina Burgin) is jockeying one of the new musical klatsches an every - other week Saturday night affair on NBC-TV.

Busy At Home

"I didn't know whether I wanted to work this hard and then there were all my family responsibilities," explained Miss Bergen as to her skittishness in taking on a show. "I have a 10-year-old daughter (her husband's by a previous marriage) and a husband to take care of and an 11-room apartment to run.

"We do an awful lot of entertaining and in fact, when Dean Martin fell out as regular alternate to my series, they offered me the full 26 weeks on NBC and I turned it down. I didn't want to do it. It was just too much."

Miss Bergen, a fugitive from the movies and nightclubs, hit TV paydirt last season when she capered as Helen Morgan on a CBS-TV "Playhouse 90."

"My biggest problem this year was deciding whether I should take on my own show this season or be a sought-after guest. One of the biggest problems in the business is getting guests for shows.

"But, well, I felt I had reached a point in my career where if I ever was to have a show, now was the time. After that Morgan thing, I felt I was at a climactic point in my career. We felt we had to cash in now."

Her first show this fall was razzberried by some of the critics, but Miss Bergen shrugged it off. She also shrugged off two of the three writers she hired for that first show.

"Believe me, when I say I didn't resent the reviews," said Miss Bergen. "On the day before the show everybody knew it wasn't falling together the way we had hoped it would. But it was the first show and nobody had the courage at the last moment to do anything about it.

"The critics were right. But I also feel that first shows shouldn't be reviewed. Nobody is ever at his best for a first show. Everybody is just too nervous. I know that when I did night clubs I always had a sore throat on opening night."

U. S. Group in Moscow Meeting

MOSCOW (UP)—Eleven U S representatives and staff members of a subcommittee of the House Committee on Government Operations arrived here Sunday for a five day visit.

The group is headed by Rep Chet Holifield (D-Calif.).

A second group representing the Joint Atomic Energy Committee and headed by Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn.) will arrive later this week.

Revival of Jazz in California

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK (UP) — California wasn't the cradle of jazz but it certainly was the origin of its timely revival in the early years of World War II.

It was the Californians, led by Lu Watters and his Yerba Buena band, who gave the sick patient just what was needed to start a new life. One of the California steadies who has made much good jazz music in the past decade is Bob Scobey, as fine a trumpet man as they come.

Scobey's good work is demonstrated amply on a new RCA-Victor LP, "Swing' on the Golden Gate." His Frisco Jazz Band breezes through 12 lively standards arranged by Matty Matlock, a real professor on the blackstick.

Selections include "I Can't Get Started With You," "Wabash Cannonball," "Waiting for the Robert E. Lee" and "Feet Draggin' Blues." Vocals are by Clancy Hayes, one of the better blues stylists.

Other recommended jazz LP's: "A Night at Poppa John's by Poppa John Gordy (RCA-Victor). One of our most articulate ragtime pianists has a good time backing up his band on the keyboard with a warming selection that includes "Piano Roll Blues," "Silver Moon," "Do You Ever Think of Me?" and "Goodnight Irene."

"Mellow Moods of Jazz" (RCA-Victor) an all-star combo featuring Billy Butterfield, Peanuts Hucko, Tony Scott and others on a dozen good numbers.

"A Salute to the Fabulous Dorseys" by Buddy Morrow (Mercury). Here is a eulogy in music to the brothers who helped make the big bands great in the 1930's. Morrow played with Tommy and Jimmy and recalls in their own style the numbers most often associated with the Dorsey name.

Suggested singles—"Klingaling" by Guy Lombardo (Capitol), "Hey Jose" by Percy Faith (Columbia), "I'll Sail My Ship Alone" by Jane Grant (Dot).

Teen-agers Have Own Program on Station WQED

Teen-agers of the Pittsburgh area again have a television program of their very own, but one which, this year, boasts a slightly "new look," according to Betsy Andrews, its producer.

The program, "Teen Showcase," is planned by teens and for teens, and is telecast over Channel 13 each Wednesday at 8 p.m. With the results of a WQED Teen Conference in mind (the parley was held at the educational television station last May), the program producer and others working with the series plan to show more than just the talents of area teen agers.

The various half-hour programs will be divided into segments which will offer a picture of what teens like, what they are thinking, and what they are doing. Hank Stohl, of KDKA-TV, will host each show.

A coordinator has been assigned in most of the private, parochial and public high schools of the district to keep the station producer informed of the activities in their respective schools and also to make suggestions for and about the "Teen Showcase" programs.

Super Oil Tankers Are Carrying Some Giant-size Headaches Too

By ROBERT SHORTAL

NEW YORK (UP) — Supertankers are carrying some giant-size headaches along with their cargoes of oil products.

These giant tankers, ranging in size up to 85,000 tons, can carry in one voyage enough gasoline to fill the tanks of nearly 2-million cars or supply the oil needs of a city the size of Cincinnati for a month.

The post - war revolution in tanker sizes has been triggered by a growing demand for more oil and an all - out effort to cut transportation costs. At present, these sea - going giants can haul petroleum products half - way around the world for as little as three cents a gallon.

But this revolution has resulted in a massive headache for the world's leading seaports. Many ports are forced to undertake multi-million dollar expansion and modernization programs to accommodate these super - tankers and remain competitive in the lucrutive petroleum trade.

The problem is especially bad in the United States, where many key refining and terminal facilities were built long before the advent of the supertanker. They're just not able to handle the big ships.

In addition to shallow harbors and channels, the continental shelf imposes some severe natural limitations on the size of ships which can come into our Gulf and East Coast ports. The West Coast has a number of deep water ports.

New York City, the world's busiest seaport, is only a third-rate stopping place for tankers of 40,000 tons or more because of narrow and shallow channels.

The vast complex of refineries in the New York area is located on the New York and New Jersey channels, neither of which can accommodate the bigger tankers. The great ocean liners use the main Ambrose Channel into the harbor.

New York is not alone with this problem. Philadelphia is dredging a 40-foot channel and mapping plans for a 50-foot channel. Deeper channels on the Delaware River have led to a recent refinery expansion in the area, with more to come.

Los Angeles is building a supertanker terminal in the outer harbors, including a 45-foot channel and a pier big enough to accommodate ships 1,000 feet long. The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers is studying the feasibility of deepening channels in the San Francisco Bay area.

At present, the 85,000 - ton tankers must pump oil into lighters outside the bay area in order to raise themselves for the channel voyage. These supertankers require at least a 50-foot channel when fully loaded.

In some Middle East ports, piers are built to run one mile out, where supertankers can unload via underwater pipelines.

New York, however, cannot handle the 85,000 - ton giants. The port of New York authority has asked the Engineers Corps to deepen channels from 35 to 45 feet This would permit ships up to 60,000 - tons to deliver oil at many of New York's 48 tanker berths.

The authority estimated that if the 30 million tons of petroleum coming into New York each year were carried in 46,000-ton tankers instead of smaller ones as at present, transportation costs could be cut by 30 million dollars a year.

Overseas, Belgium, France, England, Japan, the Philippines and Brazil are planning or working on harbor improvement programs because of supertankers.

During World War II and the immediate post - war years, nearly all the oil moving by sea was carried in 16,000 - ton T-2 tankers.

At present, tankers ranging in size up to 106,500 ton are under construction These ships will be around 90 feet long. The Queen Elizabeth is 1,031 feet long and weighs 83,000 tons.

People Have Strange Ways, Survey Shows

By ALFRED LEECH

CHICAGO (UP)—Red and white package help sell cigarettes. Tail fins boost automobile sales. And cutting the price of a beer might reduce the sales, too.

These are some of the findings of motivation research. Here are others:

Women don't like triangles. Most people like ovals. People who drive dilapidated cars frequently have marked inferiority complexes.

Martin J. Corcoran, a leading exponent of the "depth interview" in determining what people will buy, was the man who found out about the dilapidated cars.

Corcoran's firm, advisors in management, was retained to study consumer attitudes toward repair garages. His interviewers asked each subject to draw a picture of a car.

All the drawings fell into three major types. There was the long, sleek job with all sorts of doodads. This was the case of thee exhibitionist. They survey showed he wouldn't spend money on an engine overhaul or repairs that would not show. He'd rather trade for a new car.

Another type of drawing resembled a Sherman tank. The windows were narrow slits. The car was massive. The owner obviously was trying to build a wall around himself.

"This was the car of the suspicious, almost paranoid, person," Corcoran said. "The kind who is sure the garage is trying to gouge him on the repair bill."

Then there was the jalopy.

"People who drew this sort of car very often were drawing the car they drove," Corcoran said. "And they were strongly attached to it.

19-Hour Day Helps To Keep Local Army Soldier Quite Busy

(This is the fifth in a series of letters written by Alfred P. Klimcke, a Monessen youth who recently started a six-month training program under the Reserve Forces Act. He is relating some of the experiences which recruits undergo.)

By ALFRED KLIMCKE

FORT KNOX, Ky. — (Special to The Daily Independent) — The toughest single day of our training program was yet to be faced when this sixth week opened.

The first two days of the week was spent in practicing and more practicing with the rifle and grenade, but it was Wednesday that really "took the cake."

It began ordinarily enough with a class on camouflage and concealment. But, before it ended we had put in 19 rather trying hours.

A demonstrator showed us the "low crawl", the "high crawl", night crawling and night walking, which were to occupy us for the remainder of the day and evening. We also received instruction in night movement and fighting.

Following our noon meal we were marched off to our training area.

'Hitting the Dirt'

First we ran through a course in which two men covered each other as they advanced in turn upon an enemy entrenchment which fired blank ammunition. This involved "hitting the dirt" after each few feet and advancing behind rock piles, logs, rises in the ground and other types of protective cover.

Next we advanced through a series of battle firing positions from behind logs, through windows, behind fences and from roof tops.

Our next objective was a series of crawling advances through an infiltration course. We first advanced about 30 feet in the "low crawl" which involves pulling the body along without lifting it from the ground.

Next we advanced some 20 more feet in the "high crawl". The course was topped with about 15 feet of ominous looking barbed wie which appeared far too close to the ground for a man to crawl under. But, we did it. On our backs, clutching our rifles over our faces for protection.

We recovered from this ordeal at a lecture on enemy observation. A test involved the firing of blanks from a machinegun by several camouflaged soldiers who were only a few feet from us, but unnoticed.

Painted Up

As soon as it got dark enough we were painted up for night fighting. Then back to the infiltration course for another crawling exercise.

Following this we got a demonstration on how far light and sound travel at night This marked the end of the day, except we double-timed the two miles back into camp. It was after 11 p.m. when we finally got to bed.

The rest of the week was devoted to preparation for a full-field inspection. Most of the men received weekend passes, the first since arrival at Fort Knox.

Following an attack of bronchitis, during which time I spent several days in Ireland Army Hospital here, I met John Kossar, a former schoolmate from Monessen, who is working here as a hospital clerk. He is serving a two-year regular Army hitch.

Controls Over Earth Satellites May Be Urged

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—The United States will present to the General Assembly early this week a disarmament plan that may urge controls over earth satellites such as the Russian sphere hurtling around the globe.

U.S. delegation sources pointed out that both President Eisenhower and U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., stressed the need for international controls over outspace missiles before the Russians sprang their surprise satellite launching Friday.

While the Soviet satellite is not a ballistic missile, another type of earth satellite conceivably could be used to launch or guide ballistic missiles of the future.

The U.S. delegation has prepared a draft resolution on the Western Disarmament Plan and expects to have at least 15 co-sponsors. A U.S. delegation spokesman said it would be introduced "early this week," perhaps today.

There was little likelihood the Soviet satellite would be mentioned directly in the draft resolution. But there was no doubt it would be taken up in the forthcoming debate on disarmament.

Atlantic Coast Storm Dies Out In Pennsylvania

By UNITED PRESS

A storm that lashed the mid-Atlantic coast with near hurricane force died out today in Pennsylvania.

The ocean-born storm hit the Virginia coast yesterday with 74-mile-an-hour winds that sent tidewaters a foot deep swirling through downtown Norfolk.

Water damage was reported light at Norfolk, but a wind-whipped fire burned four homes during the storm, causing about $100,000 damage.

Several ships in the Norfolk area were damaged, and a coastal ferry with 12 persons aboard was forced to ride out the storm for several hours.

Drenching rains accompanying the storm ranged from the Carolinas to New York and to the eastern shores of the Great Lakes.
